Boyd R. Whitehill

Boyd Richard Whitehill, the son of Robert L. and Annie E. (Tyner) Whitehill, was born May 21, 1927, in Shenandoah, IA, and passed away June 27, 2000, in Omaha, Nebraska.

Boyd grew up in the Northboro, IA area attending West Point Country School, Northboro Public School, and graduating from the Coin High School. After graduation he joined the Army Transport Command, which was a part of the U.S. Merchant Mariners. On December 18, 1946, Boyd was united in marriage to Gwendolin Bayless and to this union two children, Judy Kaye and Duane Richard, were born. He worked on the farm until moving to town in Northboro and then to Shenandoah where in 1949 he went into the retail oil business. His business grew from a small station in Northboro to building his own service station with bulk deliveries and liquid propane expanding through out Southwest Iowa.

Boyd served on the Shenandoah City Council, Iowa Petroleum Marketers Board, S.W. Iowa L.P. Gas Association and currently was serving on the board of Forest Park Manor. He was a member of the United Methodist Church, where he had served on various committees through the years. Boyd was featured in an article in National Petroleum Magazine for his accomplishments in the field of petroleum marketing.

Boyd was respected in the Paint Horse Show circles for consistency in raising and showing fine Paint colts. He loved caring for animals, grooming his yard and garden and taking care of his flowers. He enjoyed doing things for the needy, helping people in ways financially and spiritually and calling on the sick and elderly. Boyd will be remembered for his sense of humor and his love of people.

Preceding Boyd in death were his parents; stepmother, Opal Whitehill; daughter, Judy Ditmars; and a brother Kenneth Whitehill.
